FLASHPOINT: Search several databases at once, including, PubMed, MathSciNet, and the SearchPlus databases!

Flashpoint: a multi-database tool searches across article databases to narrow the wide array of search results for a particular topic.

- What database has the largest number of hits for “string theory”?
- Where is the journal “Review of Scientific Instruments” indexed?
- What database contains articles written by T. Geballe?

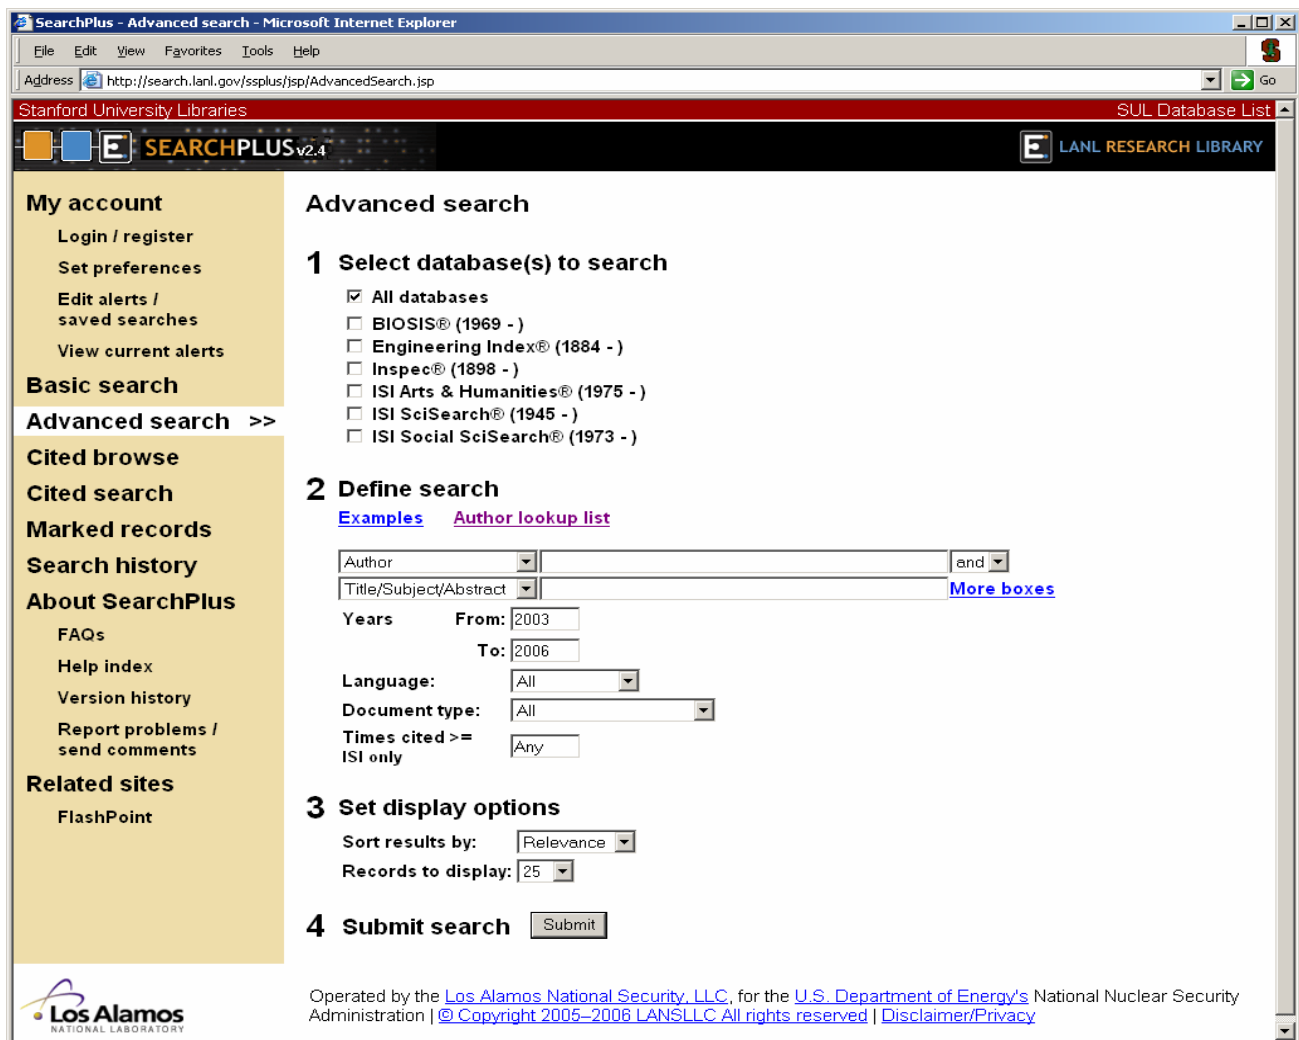

Flashpoint can help you answer these and other questions quickly and thoroughly. Cut your search time.

SEARCHPLUS@LANL: A multi-database search tool that allows complex searching of one or more of the following databases:

- Biosis
- Engineering Index
- Inspec
- ISI Art & Humanities
- ISI SciSearch
- ISI Social SciSearch.

The three ISI databases are unique in providing citation tracking.

An additional important feature of SearchPlus is the Alerts feature that allows you stay current with the literature.
